DETAILED ACTION

1. Claims 1-14, 16-24, 67-80, 82-91, 94, 96, 98, and 99 are allowed.
2. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

The closest prior art of record belongs to Bissonette et al. (hereinafter Bissonette) U.S. Patent 6,343,279, Barnes et al. (hereinafter Barnes) U.S. Patent 5,970,475, Embrey U.S. Patent 6,311,170, and Weissman U.S. Patent 6,032,134

Bissonette teaches a system for integrating credit card transactions into a financial management system for a company tracking purchases (column 2, lines 35-58). Bissonette further teach that the system allows cardholders to identify disputes and track the disputes (column 2, lines 59-67). The system further maintains a credit card statement table for each statement from the credit card issuing organization as well as group approval and organizational purchase orders(column 9, line 61 thru column 10, line 11 and column 14, line 14 thru column 15, line 20).

Barnes teaches an electronic procurement system and method for trading partners which enables corporate purchasers and suppliers to electronically transact for the purchase and supply of goods/services (Abstract). Barnes teaches sending payments and receiving invoices (column 3, lines 44 thru column 4, line 4). Barnes further teaches providing suppliers with accounting reports (column 22, lines 46-67; Examiner notes the accounting reports are analogous to A/R data).

Embrey teaches a system for consolidating and streamlining payment activities through the utilization of a third party service provider and allows a service provider to make payments, on behalf of a plurality of payor entities to a plurality of payee entities (column 2, lines 50-60). Payments are made on behalf of a plurality of payors by a plurality of associated buying entities (column 24, lines 29 thru column 25, line 14 and Figure 27). Embrey further teaches that an authorization code is required for payment (column 26, lines 45-60).

Weissman teaches a credit card billing system for identifying expenditures on a credit card account an invoice for a buying entity is broken down by employees (column 3, lines 33-65 and Figures 2A and 2B).

Regarding claim 1, the prior art fails to teach a method for ordering and payment allocation for a seller and a buying entity, the seller having a plurality of subsidiaries, and the buying entity having a plurality of buyers, the method comprising the acts of:

receiving, at an order and payment allocation system, a plurality of orders comprising at least one order from more than one of the plurality of buyers associated with the buying entity, the plurality of orders corresponding to more than one subsidiary of the seller;

using a computer processor, consolidating, at the ordering and payment allocation system, the plurality of orders for the buying entity into a consolidated invoice comprising particulars on the orders of the plurality of buyers associated with the buying entity;

receiving, at the ordering and payment allocation system, an indication from the buying entity, as to which of the orders a payment is approved and which orders are disputed or excepted;

receiving, at the ordering and payment allocation system, an aggregated payment from the buying entity;

using the computer processor, disaggregating the aggregated payments by associating portions of the aggregated payment with an approved order and a corresponding subsidiary;

using the computer processor, allocating the portions of each of the aggregated payments to the corresponding subsidiary for which the payment has been made;

using the computer processor, performing a consolidated receivables process to gather payment data into consolidated receivables data for a single report; and using the computer processor, matching the consolidated receivables data to an outstanding sub-invoice file, and providing the matched data to the seller.

For this reason, claim 1 is deemed allowable over the prior art. Claim 67 is allowed for similar reasons. Claims 2-14, 16-24, 68-80, 82-91, 94, 96, 98, and 99 are allowed based on their dependency.

3. Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
